Serving the profession and community since 1949, the Hong Kong Bar Association (HKBA) is the only professional organisation of barristers in Hong Kong. As at August 2025, there are over 1,700 practising members, including 109 Senior Counsel.

The objects of the HKBA, as set out in its Rules and Regulations, are generally to consider and to take proper action on all matters affecting the legal profession and the administration of justice. These include among other things :

- the maintenance of the honour and independence of the Bar;
- the improvement of the administration of justice in Hong Kong;
- the prescribing of rules of professional conduct, discipline and etiquette;
- furtherance of good relations and understanding within the legal profession.

Barristers are legal practitioners expert in advocacy and specialising in litigation. Generally, only barristers have the right of audience in Hong Kong's Court of First Instance, Court of Appeal and the Court of Final Appeal. A practising barrister is bound to accept any instruction to appear before a Court in the field in which he professes to practise at his or her usual fee having regard to the type, nature, length and difficulty of the case. This is customarily known as "the cab-rank rule". However, special circumstances such as conflict of interest may exist which justify a barrister in refusing to accept a particular instruction.

World Justice Project

The World Justice Project (WJP) is an independent, multidisciplinary organisation working to create knowledge, build awareness, and stimulate action to advance the rule of law worldwide. Founded in 2006, WJP produces original, independent research and data about the rule of law, promotes understanding and appreciation for the rule of law, its relationship to development, and effective strategies to strengthen it; and connects and builds an engaged global network of policymakers and advocates to advance the rule of law through strategic partnerships, convenings, coordinated advocacy, and support for locally led initiatives.

WJP compiles the Rule of Law Index, the world's leading source for original, independent data on the rule of law. The Index measures rule of law performance across 142 countries and jurisdictions, evaluating them across eight key factors including corruption and access to justice.

Beyond measurement and data collection, WJP engages in research, scholarship, and on-the-ground programmes to strengthen the rule of law in practice. Engagement efforts include connecting and developing a global network, organising and leading strategic convenings, and incubating practical, locally-led programmes. At its World Justice Forum, regional conferences, and single-country workshops, advocates come together to learn about the rule of law, build their networks, and design pragmatic solutions to local rule of law challenges.

GOLD SPONSOR

Haldanes

Hong Kong is a city built on grit and determination, a place where modest beginnings, paired with hard work and a dash of optimism, can grow into something remarkable. That's exactly the Haldanes story.

When we opened our doors in 1975, we had little more than ambition, a leaky air conditioner, and an abacus to balance the books. Five decades later, we have evolved into one of Hong Kong's most respected full-service law firms.

As we mark our 50th anniversary, we're reflecting on how that same tenacity, and the unmistakable Hong Kong spirit, has shaped a practice ready for today's complex, fast-changing legal landscape, both at home and internationally.

The "Haldanes Difference" comes down to three things: People, Professionalism, and a Client-First Ethic. Our lawyers and staff combine deep expertise with adaptability, creativity, and an unwavering focus on client needs. Year after year, our work earns recognition from peers and leading legal directories for its quality, innovation, and results.

From high-profile criminal defence trials to landmark corporate deals, from media and entertainment matters to sensitive family cases, Haldanes lawyers are known for being driven, responsive, and ready to meet any challenge. It's who we are, and who we've been for 50 years.
